Providing three appliances in one package, the Candy Trio makes good use of space

In a small kitchen, the appliances can be very dominating, taking up vital space that could otherwise be used for storage of pots and pans, crockery and groceries.

European appliance manufacturer Candy has come up with a practical solution for the owners of homes and apartments where the kitchens are small and any space that can be saved is quickly snapped up for other purposes. The 3 in 1 Trio is a practical and innovative product combining three appliances that most of us consider essential in any kitchen.

Distributed and serviced Australia-wide by Dom Tech Appliances, the Candy 3 in 1 Trio incorporates a multifunction oven, a vitro ceramic cooktop and a dishwasher, all within a single 60cm-wide unit.

Trio's cooktop is designed for any cooking style so, like conventional hobs, all hotplates are able to be operated independently. The oven, with its 40-litre capacity, has a double glass, mirror front, and a choice of functions including convection cooking, grill and rotisserie. It also has an electronic timer for convenience. Electronic controls, five wash programmes and four temperature options are all features of the six-place-setting dishwasher.

Candy has been manufacturing kitchen and laundry appliances since the company was first launched in Italy 60 years ago. Its range also includes washing machines, washer/dryers and dishwashers, all available through Dom Tech Appliances.

Director of Dom Tech Appliances Ashley Reidy says the Trio's three components are independent appliances, so should any one require maintenance, the others should still be useable.
